Thirteenth Round.—Godfrey showed up with his right shoulder raw to bleeding from stopping Kilrain's attempts at his law. He was not very kay, and Kilrain was equally content to call it a round for wint.

The fourteenth was lively, but not damaging. Most of exchanges at close quarters were light as far as visible results could determine. Kilrain indicted whatever punishment was meted out.

Fifteenth Round.—Kilrain swung his left on Godfrey's neck as soon as they faced each other, and Godfrey chased him for half a minute in the vain endeavor to get even. This round was also in favor of hill rain, mainly from the indiction of jaw and mean blows followed by clinches.

Kilrain outspread Godfrey all through the exteenth and indicted some terrific punishment on the bacro's iron head. Godfrey tried to fight back, but after a lead or two was too weak to stop, or get away from the abover or hlows that Kilrain poured in on him. But still Godfrey did not go down.
